Chapter 1 by Feyre Archeron

I was on my way to biology class, when a foreign student came and asked for help to get to biology. So I said that I was on my way there and I said that she could follow me. Then we got to class she was seated at a table and I sat down at my table, and she showed up just in time for us making our class cards. As we were making the class cards someone raised their hand and said we are taking blood samples at 1:45pm.

I groaned, then got back to work. The bell rung and the hall way was like happy hour at McDonald's, I was just trying to get to orchestra and not be tardy. Fortunately I got there just in time right before the bell rang. Then we played for almost an hour straight my arm hurt so bad. Then the bell rung again and it was time for seminar. For seminar the teacher decided to let us have a break and go outside and visit. Then I saw something with the most beautiful colors and then realized that it was a leaf. It was the most beautiful thing that I ever saw. Then the whistle blew and we went inside and we sat down and had social studies with the same teacher.

When I looked at the clock it almost said 1:40pm the teacher told us to close our textbooks and sit quietly and to grab our forms from our parent to get a blood sample and do some tests in science at school. All of us had it except Angela (the foreign student) so she got to sit and listen to music the whole time. While kids were crying and screaming about how they were scared and they have never had their blood drawn before. Finally when it was my turn I was probably the only one who didn't scream or cry. I sat still and watched them stick it in there and watched the blood come out into the vile.
